The Lao PDR – UN Partnership Framework (UNPF) is an articulation of the shared commitment of UN Country Team to work together as one, to maximize its resources and contributions in the best interests of the people of Lao PDR.

The success of the UNPF will be measured by Lao PDR’s progress towards the graduation from Least Developed Country status and the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals with equity.

The foundation for the realization of the UNPF is supported by three pillars: (1) Inclusive Growth, Livelihoods and Resilience; (2) Human Development; and (3) Governance, Rule of Law and Participation in National Decision-Making.

The UN presence and capacity is focused to provide high-level advice to improve the quality of public policy, strengthen the efficiency of governance and management systems, support data-driven real time evidence for better programming and policy, and facilitate innovation and gender in public policy and programming.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Lao People’s Democratic Republic – United Nations Partnership Framework 2017-2021 reflects the collective contribution and intention of the United Nations to support Lao PDR achieve the development goals set by the government and in alignment with the 2030 Agenda and its Sustainable Development Goals, enabling Lao PDR to transition to an upper middle income country, whose people, especially the poor and vulnerable groups, benefit from quality services and enjoy rights.

The Partnership Framework was developed following extensive analysis and consultation outlined in a roadmap and jointly agreed to by the United Nations Country Team and the Government.

It provides a comprehensive response and encapsulates in its goals the need to prioritize United Nations support in the context of Lao PDR and the 2030 Agenda, assisting the country to graduate from Least Developed Country status in a dignified, equitable and inclusive manner; and ensuring Sustainable Human Development and the eradication of poverty in terms of its 8th National Socio-Economic Development Plan 2016-2020 and enhanced regional integration.

Lao PDR is a stable country with steady economic growth, and rich in cultural heritage and natural resources. The country has made significant strides to better integrate in both the regional and international systems and achieve the Millennium Development Goals, setting itself the ambitious goal to graduate from Least Developed Country status by 2020. Additionally, government capacity has strengthened in the area of public sector management and service delivery to citizens.

The United Nations is represented by 16 resident agencies and a number of regionally or headquarter-based agencies. The United Nations partners with the government to address the many challenges Lao PDR faces as a landlocked Least Developed Country, leveraging its expertise to improve the quality of public policy, promote modernization, innovation and effective public institutions, and support evidence-based and data-driven monitoring and dialogue.

Every effort was made to ensure national ownership of the Partnership Framework through an inclusive and engaged approach; with all United Nations Agencies, including non-resident and specialized agencies; alignment with national development priorities, strategies and systems primarily through the 8th National Socio-Economic Development Plan 2016-2020; integration of international commitments, including on human rights; and mutual accountability for development results.
This Partnership Framework is underpinned by the five programming principles of a human rights-based approach, gender equality, environmental sustainability, results-based management and capacity development. Additionally, it takes into account the specific context of Lao PDR, focusing on its cultural and national heritage, its diverse ethnic groups, a phased reform process and its agricultural economy with a pronounced rural-urban divide.

The vision of the United Nations Partnership Framework is to support the Government of Lao PDR in reaching its aspirations of becoming a modern upper middle income country, whose people benefit equally from quality services.

The Partnership Framework results, which form the core of the proposed actions, are built around three thematic pillars:

Pillar 1, focusing on Inclusive Growth, Livelihoods and Resilience, aims to increase opportunities for decent livelihoods and jobs, provide a comprehensive social protection policy framework, protect forests and other ecosystems and decrease vulnerability to climate change and disasters.

Pillar 2, focusing on Human Development, will contribute to increasing access to quality education and skills for children and youth, improving access to quality health services, water, sanitation and hygiene and improving food security and nutrition for the most vulnerable.

Pillar 3, focusing on Governance will target state institutions’ abilities to deliver basic services and ensure improved access to justice, strengthened rule of law and more effective participation in national decision-making.

This Partnership Framework has also outlined the resource requirements, implementation, and monitoring and evaluation arrangements to ensure an accountable and transparent delivery. In the spirit of the United Nations Charter and the Quadrennial Comprehensive Policy Reviews of United Nations operational activities for development, and taking into full account international commitments, all United Nations Agencies in Lao PDR commit to increase coherence toward greater unity in action and to Deliver as One.

1. INTRODUCTION

The Lao People’s Democratic Republic (Lao PDR) – United Nations Partnership Framework 2017-2021 (UNPF) reflects the ambition of the United Nations (UN) Country Team to support national development priorities and the government’s aspirations for the country to develop into a modern upper middle income country.

The UNPF describes the collective response of the UN system to the national development priorities and will seek to avoid duplication of efforts and ensure synergies between UN Agencies. It is designed to improve coordination and coherence at country level; enhance transparency and predictability; and make available UN resources to the Government of Lao PDR. This will be achieved by building on the unique expertise of all UN funds, programs and specialized agencies working in the country.

The UNPF has been developed through consultation with government, international development partners, civil society, the public and others, including an analysis of progress towards the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) 2015, a discussion paper on the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), the 8th National Socio-Economic Development Plan 2016-2020 (8th NSEDP) and an analysis of the comparative advantages of the UN.

Through the UNPF, the UN Country Team’s strategic focus will shift to align with the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and its SDGs. The consultations reaffirm that the UN in Lao PDR is well respected and viewed as impartial with a good long-term relationship with government that is based on trust and credibility, technical expertise and access to global networks.

Areas of improvement have been identified as the lack of coordination between UN Agencies, bureaucracy, lack of financial resources and the need to take stronger positions. These outcomes have been considered in the development of the UNPF.

The mission of the UNPF is aligned with the 8th NSEDP and its overall goals of sustainable inclusive growth, Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) integration and graduation from Least Developed Country (LDC) status, as well as with the various sectoral policies and strategies. Within the overall context of the SDGs and based on the respective expertise and comparative advantages of the UN Agencies and that of other partners, the UN will support capacity development and assist the government and people of Lao PDR to implement these plans and policies.
The vision of the UN is to support the Government of Lao PDR to reach its aspirations of becoming a modern upper middle income country, whose people benefit equally from quality services.

The UNPF is anchored by the three key pillars that underpin its implementation: Inclusive Growth, Livelihoods and Resilience; Human Development; and Governance.

In the spirit of the United Nations Charter, the UNPF confirms the commitment of all UN Agencies in Lao PDR to work together coherently, avoid duplication and harmonize programs and policies, in alignment with the aspiration to Deliver as One.

1.1 Development of the Lao PDR – UN Partnership Framework

The UN Country Team and the government agreed on a roadmap to guide the UNPF development and ensure alignment to national development plans, with major milestones consisting of an evaluation of the UN Development Assistance Framework 2012-2016 (UNDAF), and a comprehensive country analysis. A National-UN Steering Committee ensured the inclusion of key partners in government and development partners. The Steering Committee established that the following elements of strategic focus were key to the development of the UNPF:

- National ownership and alignment with national development priorities, strategies and systems, that is inclusive of all stakeholders in all stages of the process. Multi-stakeholder partnerships engage government and other key stakeholders; the UNPF, and the country analysis from which it emerges are based on and aligned with national development priorities and strategies;

- Inclusiveness of the UN system with full involvement of specialized and non-resident agencies;

- Integration of the five programming principles of a human rights-based approach, gender equality, environmental sustainability and other international commitments, as well as theory of change/results-based management, and capacity development, tailored to the Lao PDR context;

- Mutual accountability for development results is interpreted, for the purpose of the UNPF, as the respective accountability of parties working together towards shared outcomes. Many stakeholders will contribute to the UNPF’s outcomes and each will be accountable for its contribution. An Annual Progress Report will focus on UN Country Team contributions to these outcomes and as such, will address the respective accountability at the outcome level.

The rollout of the UNPF provided an excellent opportunity to develop a pragmatic and inclusive framework that will support the implementation of the 8th NSEDP 2016-2020. The 8th NSEDP’s overall goal is continued poverty reduction, graduation from LDC status through realization of national development potential and comparative advantages, effective management and utilization of natural resources and strong regional and international integration and is structured around three outcomes and 17 outputs that have been linked to the UNPF. Additionally, the UNPF is aligned with the global SDGs, adopted in 2015.
1.2 Situation Analysis

Lao PDR is a land-locked country bordering Cambodia, China, Myanmar, Thailand, and Viet Nam. About 6.5 million people live in its 18 provinces, with most people – 67 percent – still living in rural areas. However, urbanization is occurring at a rate of 4.9 percent each year. The country is largely mountainous, with the most fertile land found along the Mekong plains. The river flows from north to south, forming the border with Thailand for more than 60 percent of its length.

Despite still being an LDC, Lao PDR has made significant progress in poverty alleviation over the past two decades with poverty rates declining from 46 percent in 1992 to 23 percent in 2012. The country is on course to achieve its poverty targets; however, the challenge now is to ensure that all people benefit from the country’s development.

Lao PDR, established in December 1975, is a stable country with steady economic growth, and rich in cultural heritage and natural resources. The Constitution of Lao PDR was adopted in 1991. The country has acceded to numerous international instruments. These, include seven out of the nine core human rights treaties which require active and meaningful engagement with international mechanisms, and creating a more conducive legal environment for civil society. In 2015, the government has accepted inter alia recommendations from the Universal Periodic Review on strengthening the enabling environment for civil society and media, promoting the administration of justice and combatting corruption.

The country is actively pursuing regional and global integration. Lao PDR joined ASEAN in 1997 and the World Trade Organization in (WTO) 2013. The ASEAN Economic Community came into force in 2015.

One of the main development challenges is ensuring that the benefits from high economic growth, averaging more than 7 percent Gross Domestic Product (GDP) for the past five years, are evenly distributed and translated into inclusive and sustainable human development. Widening gaps between rich and poor, women and men, ethnic groups, and residents of different regions of the country need to be addressed.

Key drivers of poverty in Lao PDR are largely attributed to the agricultural sector and analysis reflects key factors that contributed toward poverty reduction to be small sustained shifts to non-agricultural activities, expansion in education and targeted government investment in poverty related interventions.

Lao PDR’s economic boom is driven primarily by foreign direct investment in natural resource extraction and hydropower. Ensuring that this is conducted in an environmentally sustainable way in respect of the rights of communities and individuals, and that the revenues generated benefit everyone, is critical for the development of the country.

A landmark achievement for Lao PDR was its formal accession to the WTO in 2013, resulting in closer integration into the regional and global economies with a substantial increase in trade of goods and services. Key issues for improvement relate to the country’s skills deficit, reliance on the agricultural sector and much needed investment in machinery.
The presence of unexploded ordnance (UXO) from the Indochina War (1964-1973) in the country continues to destroy lives and limits agricultural production and expansion. More than 2 million tons of bombs were dropped on all provinces between 1964 and 1973, with 30 percent of those failing to detonate. The correlation between UXO contamination and the prevalence of poverty is clear, with 42 of the 46 poorest districts affected by UXO. The possibility of linkages between UXO clearance and livelihoods can be further explored and strengthened.

1.3 Summary Review of the Millennium Development Goals

In Lao PDR, the significant gains made in economic growth and social sectors over the recent years have paved the way for continual improvement in human development in the country. Between 1985 and 2012, substantial progress has been made in the main Human Development Index (HDI) indicators: life expectancy increased by 19 years, mean years of schooling increased by 2.5 years and Gross National Income per capita increased by 310 percent. Consequently, Lao PDR has seen steady improvement in its HDI value over time, making Lao PDR one of the HDI growth leaders in the medium human development category, where it currently sits. Lao PDR was ranked 141 out of 188 countries in the 2015 Human Development Report.

Lao PDR has the highest total fertility rate among the ASEAN countries with one of the youngest populations in the region. The country is projected to benefit from the ‘demographic dividend’ in the economy in the medium term. However, this is contingent upon young people being better equipped with the appropriate skills and knowledge and new jobs keeping pace with the growth of the working age population.

Lao PDR has achieved the poverty related MDG 1 by halving its national poverty rate during the past decade. However, poverty reduction and consumption growth lag behind GDP growth, and varies by location, education, ethnicity and occupation of household, resulting in increasing income inequality and a rural-urban gap. One third of the population in the uplands remains below the poverty line. While the MDG target of halving the proportion of the hungry was achieved, there is still a significant rate of hunger, with one fifth of the population - children in particular - being food insecure. The MDG 1 target of reducing underweight and stunting among children has not been achieved and requires concerted action. The MDG 2 target of achieving universal primary education has not been met and education from early childhood level to secondary education will have to be improved significantly. Special attention will have to be paid to early childhood education and ensuring retention rates from primary to secondary schooling.

In terms of meeting the MDG 3 target of promoting gender equality and empowerment of women, Lao PDR has done well. However special effort must be made to reach women and girls in rural areas, in certain ethnic cultures and migrant workers, and ensure greater participation in decision-making. Additionally, gender mainstreaming and integration are important future issues to implement. The MDG 4 target of reducing child mortality still requires effort. Despite a two thirds reduction in under-five mortality, Lao PDR is still lagging behind. The country has met the MDG 5 target of reducing the maternal mortality rate by three quarters. Both the child mortality rate and maternal mortality rate reflect the low coverage and inadequate quality of the health services.
The MDG 6 target of combating HIV/AIDS, malaria and other diseases reflects that considerable effort is still needed in a variety of areas, including drug resistant malaria, wider distribution of bed nets, stronger tuberculosis (TB) detection and counterfeit drugs. While Lao PDR has a low HIV prevalence rate, the incidence of HIV is increasing and requires additional effort on prevention, prevention of mother to child transmission and reaching key high risk populations.

Lao PDR has achieved the safe water and sanitation MDG 7, but the high prevalence of open defecation, disparities in sanitation and issues related to water safety and sanitation remain critical to address. More investment is needed in water, sanitation and hygiene. In terms of MDG 8, and a global partnership for development, better coordination, less duplication and more innovative and results-oriented approach is necessary to optimize outcomes and implementation. The MDG 9 focuses on the unique challenge the country has to reduce the impact of UXO, the government is taking steps to address the challenges of demining, reporting and mine risk education.

The Country Analysis Report for Lao PDR provided a comprehensive review of progress toward the MDGs and identified major challenges, opportunities and new areas for action. It also provided an analysis of the vulnerable and disadvantaged groups, determinants for their lack of progress and several forward looking proposals for the UN Country Team to guide planning for the next cycle. This review coupled with the national SDGs, including the Lao-specific SDG 18 on UXO, reflect a far broader development agenda than in previous decades.

Significant discussions in the country to guide the implementation of the SDGs and incorporate the elements relevant to Lao PDR have been integrated in the 8th NSEDP and this UNPF. The Discussion Paper on the SDGs in the context of Lao PDR outlines the proposed national targets and indicators for each of the 17 SDGs, including the key outcomes and program areas, thereby providing comprehensive implementation guidance. Thus, the three Pillars and eight Outcomes prioritize the needs in the context of Lao PDR to both achieve the SDGs and graduate from LDC status.

The three Pillars and eight Outcomes of the UN Partnership Framework prioritize the needs in the context of Lao PDR to both achieve the SDGs and graduate from LDC status.

The UNPF results for Lao PDR focus on three thematic pillars that support and complement the national development priorities. It will facilitate the realignment to the SDGs, supporting the graduation from LDC status and help achieve sustainable human development and eradication of poverty. It is intended that all UN Agencies, including non-resident, will work collaboratively, share knowledge and resources and make these available to the government. Additionally, the UN Agencies will respect the distinct mandate and independence of the government.

The UN Country Team is committed to implementing the UNPF in line with the five key elements crucial for delivery on the global 2030 development agenda taking into account the country context: universality, integration, equality, human rights and accountability, and creating a data revolution. The UNPF will also strengthen the UN’s common vision and improve systems for working together with a phased approach to realizing the 15 core elements of the Delivering as One Standard Operating Procedures. This UNPF takes into account the particular challenges that Lao PDR faces in terms of its cultural and national heritage, diverse ethnic groups, the need for a phased reform process and the agrarian economy with a pronounced rural-urban divide.

In terms of achieving the UNPF, the UN has established the need for inclusive partnerships with government and all key stakeholders, working together as One UN, creating a basket fund for innovation and promoting equity and reducing vulnerabilities. The UN in Lao PDR is well placed as an active, engaged and respected partner that can contribute to improved public policy, promote modernization and innovation, support effective institutions, enable governance and provide the development of structured data-driven monitoring and dialogue.

While the three thematic pillars are buttressed by eight outcomes and 25 indicators, the UNPF implementation is dependent on addressing cross-cutting issues across all areas, such as equality and non-discrimination, including gender equality; universal access to quality services; youth development; the rule of law; planning, monitoring and evaluation; economic development; and livelihoods to facilitate improved results. The UN will also strive to build on its comparative advantages, and promote innovation across its interventions, in order to maximize outcomes.

The UN is committed to contribute to development that is based on dignity, equity and inclusiveness. Strong emphasis will be put on innovation and joint programming, monitoring and funding, that is founded on evidence-based structured dialogue.

2. RESULTS

The UN has established the need for inclusive partnerships with government and all key stakeholders, working together as One UN.

6 Vulnerable groups in the context of the UNPF include the poor, ethnic groups, unskilled and unemployed youth, self-employed and unpaid workers, migrant workers, people with disabilities and farmers without access to land. Women and children, and people living in remote rural areas are particularly disadvantaged.
The Partnership for Sustainable Development outlining the UNPF is summarized at a glance below:

PARTNERSHIP FOR SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

The UN is committed to contribute to development that is based on dignity, equity and inclusiveness.

Pillar I - Inclusive Growth, Livelihoods and Resilience

Outcome 1: All women and men have increased opportunities for decent livelihoods and jobs

Outcome 2: More people have access to social protection benefits, in particular vulnerable groups and the poor

Outcome 3: Forests and other ecosystems are protected and enhanced, and people are less vulnerable to climate-related events and disasters

Pillar II - Human Development

Outcome 4: Children and youth enjoy better access to inclusive and equitable quality basic education and vocational skills

Outcome 5: People enjoy improved access to quality health services, and water, sanitation and hygiene

Outcome 6: The most vulnerable people benefit from improved food security and nutrition

Pillar III - Governance

Outcome 7: Institutions and policies at national and local level support the delivery of quality services that better respond to people’s needs

Outcome 8: People enjoy improved access to justice and fulfillment of their human rights
PILLAR 1: INCLUSIVE GROWTH, LIVELIHOODS AND RESILIENCE

This pillar aims to address the issues of increasing opportunities for decent jobs and livelihoods, social protection - especially for the poor and vulnerable, the protection of forests and ecosystems, and decreasing vulnerability to climate change and disasters. In so doing it will contribute to eradicate poverty, promote equality, empower women and ensure environmental sustainability.

While Lao PDR achieved strong growth since the acceptance and implementation of the MDGs, moving from a low income economy to an upper middle income economy and halving its poverty rate, significant improvement is required to diversify the economy, create a more inclusive labor force and achieve greater sustainability. Lao PDR remains one of the poorest countries in Southeast Asia and has a high skills deficit, with many workers functionally illiterate and 70 percent employed in the agricultural sector. The country is rich in land, forestry, water and mineral resources, and in the middle of a fast growing region. It has taken steps toward integration both regionally and internationally, providing a solid basis for economic expansion.

With a relatively large and increasing share of the population in working age, the country is poised to benefit from a demographic dividend. It is thus imperative that job creation and skills development are promoted to create a robust economy and sustainable growth. Additionally, taking into account challenges related to biodiversity, climate change and disasters as well as the commitment to the Paris Agreement, a strong focus on environmentally sustainable development is considered a priority.

Outcome 1: All women and men have increased opportunities for decent livelihoods and jobs

Lao PDR's economic growth remains dependent on natural resources, with the non-agricultural resource sector driving economic expansion. The long-term development challenge for the country is to pursue a human resource-based growth strategy which would create more job opportunities in higher-value production and services. Moreover, the Government recognizes that people living below the poverty line need support to improve their livelihoods. These priorities will require a coordinated approach by all sectors.

In the context of Lao PDR, the SDGs on ending poverty and reducing inequality will translate into policies and actions that reduce and mitigate the impact of poverty, and focus on the most excluded and the poorest groups. The SDG promoting full and productive employment and decent work for all stresses equal work for equal pay for men and women, inclusive sustainable growth and economic productivity, youth employment, eradicating child labor and human trafficking and protecting labor rights. These are outlined as actions under the 8th NSEDP to develop sustained and inclusive economic growth, improve living standards and reduce the instability of agricultural production.

The UN has an established structure and focus in the country and in terms of its comparative advantage has been actively engaged in poverty reduction, promoting sustainable and inclusive economic growth, developing capacities and supporting the diversification of the economy. Building on its expertise, the UN can also facilitate better integration into regional and global trading systems to promote sustainable growth and employment, for instance benefitting from the free movement of goods, services, skilled labour, and freer flow of capital within the ASEAN Economic Community.
Poverty reduction will be supported by creating better economic opportunities - in the non-farm sector in particular - for the poor, attracting more investments and facilitating necessary skills. Additional programs will promote access to economic and financial resources and services, income growth, supportive laws, policies and procedures, and sustainable tourism and jobs to promote local culture and products. Technical support to UXO clearance will continue, including the strengthening of data management, to align the UXO sector with the country’s poverty reduction goals.

In order to make Lao PDR more globally competitive, both tertiary and vocational skills development will be stressed so as to create a more vibrant and diversified economy. The country will also be encouraged to institutionalize development of the information technology sector to create a connected society and work force that will be able to do business locally and internationally in a more cost-efficient and timely way. Additionally, the UN will support the government to assess how to attract quality investment to address poverty.

Outcome 2: More people have access to social protection benefits, in particular vulnerable groups and the poor

It has been recognized that despite the rapid economic growth, the social and labor sectors did not keep pace, deepening the poverty of those left behind. Moreover, Lao PDR has a fairly young population, with a majority under the age of 25 and an increasing number of older people. Many fall outside the bracket of employment. The government has thus recognized the need for targeted programs and additional resource allocation for social safety. Measures include improvements in education, livelihood support and the development of rural infrastructure and access to markets. People still living below the poverty line will be targeted with these new social protection schemes.

The 8th NSDP recognizes that more emphasis on social protection will enhance and improve the quality of life for the poorest, and contribute to inclusive growth. The development of a Social Welfare Fund, protection of children’s rights, and establishment of a social work profession have all been recognized as critical interventions to support the most vulnerable and chronically poor. Lao PDR will also need to tackle issues of social protection through improved policies and laws that address income growth, inclusion and opportunities for all, and the development of disaggregated data that will inform decisions.

The strength of the UN is rooted in its strong partnership with the government, development partners and civil society organizations, and its understanding of social and operational issues in the country. It is also the custodian of international standards to which the Government is committed. Drawing on this, the UN will support the development of the National Social Protection Strategy, provide technical support to national counterparts to deliver and monitor the services, and facilitate national dialogue for the implementation of improved social protection programs and social safety nets. Once the Strategy is in place, the UN will continue to support the government through institutional capacity building.

The 8th NSDP recognizes that more emphasis on social protection will enhance and improve the quality of life for the poorest, and contribute to inclusive growth.
Outcome 3: Forests and other ecosystems are protected and enhanced, and people are less vulnerable to climate-related events and disasters

Lao PDR has lost significant forest cover over the past decade, which has impacted negatively on greenhouse gas emission. In response, government has promoted community participation, payment for ecosystem services and sustainable forest management. Additionally, about one-fifth of the country’s forests were placed under protection. However, limited improvements were seen and more species are threatened with extinction. The country also saw an increase in extreme weather with more intense and frequent droughts and floods with implications on agriculture, food security, infrastructure and the quality of lives.

While Lao PDR saw improvements in policy and regulatory frameworks, challenges remain in implementation and enforcement. Moreover, increasingly positive results were noted in private sector development and community benefit-sharing. These successes can be expanded to promote ecotourism and payment for environmental services. The country will also be encouraged to scale up its participation in the UN Programme on Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and Forest Degradation (UN-REDD+), to benefit from the incentives provided for sustainable use of natural resources. The government has prioritized in its 8th NSEDP environmental and sustainable natural resource management seeking to significantly improve its Environmental Performance Index and biodiversity in protected areas. This will require extensive technical support from the UN to help the country improve its low score of 40.37, ranking it 127 out of 178 countries.

Mitigating the impact of climate change and vulnerability to disasters will require resilience-building and the integration of climate change measures, education and awareness raising, and the mobilization of resources for action. Strong engagement with people in communities will foster their participation in ecosystem management, biodiversity conservation, disaster risk reduction, climate change adaptation and the development of new or alternative income-generating activities in order to improve their income generation potential and livelihoods opportunities.

The UNPF approach aligns well with the Government’s intentions to reduce the effects of natural shocks as one of the key criteria for LDC graduation and to sustainably use natural resources. The UN has significant expertise on environmental protection and sustainable use of resources as well as preparedness for natural disasters and risk mitigation, and is able to swiftly respond to emergencies. It will prioritize its support to improve the management of natural resources, focusing on biodiversity and forestry conservation, sustainable production systems, chemicals and waste management, climate change adaptation and mitigation and disaster risk reduction.

PILLAR 2: HUMAN DEVELOPMENT

This Pillar seeks to strengthen human development by ensuring quality basic education and skills development, improving access to quality health services, water sanitation and hygiene and assisting the most vulnerable with improved food security and nutrition. The envisaged outcomes are improved access to quality education with better survival rates and more people trained in vocational skills as well as improved access to quality health services leading to reduced child and maternal mortality rates, and fewer stunted and malnourished children.
Lao PDR has enjoyed strong economic growth but lagged on social development, leaving behind particular groups of people. Many who escape poverty remain close to or slip back under the poverty line. Agriculture and health shocks are the main drivers of household vulnerability with farming households twice as likely to fall back into poverty. Important determinants of poverty are the level of education, produce prices, livelihoods and geographical location, exacerbated by cultural differences and lack of social protection. In order to be an effective and competitive member of the ASEAN Economic Community, the people will need to become more healthy and educated.

A major focus of Lao PDR is to graduate from LDC status, with ambitious targets to further improving poverty eradication and social inclusion. In order to reduce dependence on natural resources, increase economic diversification and create more sustainable livelihoods for its people, the country seeks to improve human capacity development, with focus on improving education, health and food security and nutrition.

Outcome 4: Children and youth enjoy better access to inclusive and equitable quality basic education and vocational skills

Lao PDR has met the MDG target for universal primary education with a net enrolment of 98.5 percent. The survival rates up to grade five however are only 78 percent, with children dropping out of school or not progressing to the next grade level. Additionally, there is limited access to early childhood development and school readiness constraining primary school completion. This is exacerbated by the limited capacity of teachers, cost of schooling for families and limited investments in education. While the budget for education has increased, the biggest chunk is allocated to recurring salary expenditure, limiting improvement and investment in education for all. While secondary schooling has made gains, higher survival rates in primary education are necessary for an overall improvement.

With its agrarian-based economy and poverty varying by location and ethnic groups, targeted and specific interventions will be necessary in addition to the national targets. Currently school attendance varies based on location, the mother’s education and poverty quintile. There is also the challenge of staffing schools in remote locations. Government has recognized the deficiencies and expanded non-formal programs to enhance opportunities for employment.

Taking the MDG lessons learnt and prioritizing actions under the SDGs expands the education focus to all levels, including skills development and vocational training for employment. In the context of Lao PDR this translates to free and equitable primary and secondary education, improved access to quality early childhood development, increased skills for employment and entrepreneurship and universal literacy among youth. Government has also expanded focus in the 8th NSEDP to target vulnerable youth and address gender disparities.

In terms of the UN comparative advantage, agencies have the requisite experience in supporting educational reforms and can draw from their significant expertise in the area. It has been recognized that the UN contributes to the development of accessible high quality education for all and the improvement of labor force capacity.

Agencies have committed to working in a collaborative manner to address the various aspects of education and skills development. Specifically, the UN will support the improvement of early childhood education, addressing low primary school completion and participation in vocational training programs

Pillar 2 seeks to strengthen human development by ensuring quality basic education and skills development, improving access to quality health services, water sanitation and hygiene and assisting the most vulnerable with improved food security and nutrition.
Most child deaths in Lao PDR are preventable but the coverage and quality of health service nationwide is still low.

to better match the supply of skills and qualifications in the workforce to the changing demands of the economy. These are all critical to ensure successful graduation from LDC status and the full realization of the demographic dividend. Awareness raising and advocacy on the prevention of early marriage and pregnancy, and the inclusion of comprehensive sexuality education in the curriculum, will contribute to these efforts.

Outcome 5: People enjoy improved access to quality health services, and water, sanitation and hygiene

Lao PDR has a life expectancy at birth of 66.2 years, which reflects small annual increments and progress in the health of its people. Lessons from the MDGs highlight the importance of overall improvements in health, in particular the reduction of child mortality and the improvement of maternal health. Most child deaths in Lao PDR are preventable but the coverage and quality of health service nationwide is still low. Integrated health outreach services need to be strengthened to reach vulnerable groups and to broaden the scope and impact of preventative health services.

While the Government has made significant investments in the rollout of free Maternal, Neonatal and Child Health Care, health sector financing and domestic resource allocation need to be increased to achieve Universal Health Coverage. Additionally, reach and quality of health care education and of health care itself need to be improved, with increased access to well-equipped and stocked health facilities and an effective referral system. While the country has a low HIV prevalence rate of below 0.5 percent for the general population and five percent for high-risk groups, it cannot afford to be complacent. Preventing mother to child transmission and reaching high-risk groups, including injection drug users and sex workers, is vital to keep the prevalence rates low. Another area of concern is multi-drug resistant malaria prevalent in the Greater Mekong sub-region, which needs to be addressed through regional interventions. Tuberculosis control and management in border areas and among migrants is another area of concern that requires regional action. With decreases in poverty, life-style diseases are on the increase, including those related to tobacco use.

The SDGs call for a broader intervention to ensure universal health and promote well-being. This includes the unfinished business of the MDGs, with additional targets related to infectious diseases, non-communicable diseases, accidents, substance abuse and mental health. The overall target of universal health care aims to address all these areas. A separate SDG on water and sanitation will require focus on ensuring access to safe drinking water, better sanitation and the elimination of open defecation, and better water resources management.

To achieve the above, the UN will support the transition towards a decentralized and results-based delivery of quality health services, integrating primary health care, improving maternal and child health and nutrition services and sexual and reproductive health, developing health human resources capacity and improving health sector financing, coordination and monitoring and evaluation.

Outcome 6: The most vulnerable people benefit from improved food security and nutrition

While Lao PDR halved the MDG target of the proportion of hungry people, it still has a significant level of hunger, as measured by the Global Hunger Index, with an estimated one fifth consuming less than the minimum dietary energy requirements. Critical underweight and stunting among children is a major concern, with 44 percent stunted, 27 percent underweight and six percent wasted. There are strong disparities across regions, with hard-to-reach groups including communities in the uplands, poorer households and mothers with lower education levels especially affected. With stunting at 20 percent among the richest quintile, the focus needs to expand to broadly cover the entire society on issues of adequate and nutritious intake, feeding and preventing infectious diseases.

Lao PDR has committed to an MDG Acceleration Framework on fast-tracking progress towards improved nutrition for women and children, and to the Zero Hunger Challenge. This will require political commitment and sustained and sufficient resources to ensure nation-wide effective implementation and “reaching of the unreached”.

The UN has engaged in a number of different areas related to food security and nutrition, agricultural production and the expansion of markets. Focus will be put on strengthening coordination structures within the Government and among partners as well as data and monitoring and evaluation to ensure malnutrition is addressed in a coordinated, sequenced and targeted manner across the health, water, sanitation, agriculture and education sectors.

The UN will also support behavioral change campaigns. As global evidence points to the need to focus on the ‘1000-days window of opportunity’ from pre-conception to two years of age, emphasis will be put on infant and child feeding practices, promoting exclusive breastfeeding and complementary feeding practices.

In line with the Agriculture Development Strategy 2025 and Vision 2030 to ensure food security and improve the livelihoods of rural communities, the UN will support the country’s transition from subsistence-oriented to market-oriented agricultural production, adapted to climate change and focused on smallholder farmers. To achieve this, programs will support the increase of agriculture productivity, diversification and improvement of the agriculture sector, increase of farmer’s incomes, capacity development of farmers’ associations, promotion of the use of modern technologies, and access to markets, inputs and finance.

PILLAR 3: GOVERNANCE

Taking into account the rapid economic growth, ambition to reach upper middle income status by 2030 and the governance gap, Pillar 3 will contribute to improving the functions, financing and capacities of national and sub-national institutions as well as facilitating access to justice and a stronger rule of law, and more effective participation in national decision-making.

The shortcomings in the areas of social development, poverty reduction, labour markets, health and education reflect the need for institutional capacity building, enhanced service delivery and a more accountable and responsive government. This underscores the important role the governance pillar would play in enabling the achievement of the other pillars' objectives.

There is a need for increased engagement and dialogue with the population, as well as the need to strengthen their ownership of national development. The UN’s role as long-term, trusted and credible partner of the government has provided a strong basis to address those needs in a progressive and constructive manner.
Outcome 7: Institutions and policies at national and local level support the delivery of quality services that better respond to people's needs

The 8th NSEDP articulates in detail the commitment to public governance and administration, recognizing governance as a critical factor. Lao PDR has made significant advances in certain areas of governance. These include strengthening public administration capacity, decentralizing delivery of local services, and improving accountability, with clearer goals and a greater share of responsibility being taken by the National Assembly. Lao PDR's progress in improving governance was commended at the 2015 Universal Periodic Review. The deficit in capacity and skills as well as corruption however remain major areas of concern, impairing the implementation of programs and service delivery that is responsive to public needs, in particular for hard-to-reach parts of the country.

An efficient and effective public sector that is transparent, accountable and trusted by the people needs to be based on strong institutions and solid public sector management. This will require the strengthening of government capacities to plan, budget, coordinate, monitor and evaluate public sector programs at national and sub-national level.

The UN draws from extensive experience in supporting national planning and capacity building, including the development of the 8th NSEDP, ensuring results-focus and the establishment of a comprehensive and SDG-based Monitoring and Evaluation framework, as well as strengthening capacity of local administrations to ensure better delivery of services, in particular in rural areas.

Under the UNPF, the UN will continue to support evidence-based policy and decision-making. For instance, the UN will harness innovation and provide technical assistance to the government in generating, analyzing and using disaggregated data to support inter alia the monitoring of the 8th NSEDP, reports on which will be debated in the National Assembly. The UN will also continue to support dialogue on effective development cooperation, in particular through the round table process, including increased participation of civil society and private sector to contribute to the achievement of national goals.

The UNPF envisages a gradual shift from traditional support to the government at the central level to a more people-centered approach at a grass-roots level. Local governance interventions will continue to strengthen the capacities of local institutions and promote inclusive decision-making.

Outcome 8: People enjoy improved access to justice and fulfillment of their human rights

The sustainable development agenda envisions a world of universal respect for human rights and human dignity, the rule of law, justice and equality; of respect for race, ethnicity and cultural values; and of equal opportunity. Areas of focus under the SDGs relevant to the Lao PDR context include reducing discrimination and providing equal opportunities for women and girls, eliminating violence against women and girls in the public and private sphere, preventing early marriages and adolescent pregnancies, and recognizing the value of unpaid care and domestic work.

Pillar 3 will contribute to improving the functions, financing and capacities of national and sub-national institutions as well as facilitating access to justice and a stronger rule of law, and more effective participation in national decision-making.
In recent years Lao PDR has opened up, ratifying seven of nine human rights treaties, creating a more conducive legal environment for civil society and actively pursuing regional and global integration. The government expresses its commitment in the 8th NSEDP to underpin inclusive and sustainable growth. The plan articulates the government’s intention to target the vulnerable and marginalized in an open and dignified manner. Non-Profit Associations play an important role in this endeavor. However, they have been primarily engaged in community development rather than advocacy. Work is required to strengthen the enabling environment for civil society and support the development of their capacities to better realize their development potential. Moreover, efforts are needed to strengthen the capacity of the government, including provincial and local administrations, to report regularly on the implementation of the international treaties and conventions.

The UN has been a key partner in facilitating improvements in the justice and legal sectors, providing advisory support to ensure participation and follow-up to human rights mechanisms such as the Universal Periodic Review, and promoting people’s participation in national development. Recommendations of the Universal Periodic Review centered inter alia on the need to strengthen the administration of justice, combat corruption, and reform policies and legislation in a number of areas.

The UN will partner with the government in the development of systems and fora to receive public feedback on draft laws and enforcement, enhancing citizens’ awareness of their rights, and increasing the number of people benefiting from access to formal and informal justice services, through inclusive and accountable institutions. This will include support to the implementation of the accepted recommendations of the Universal Periodic Review, as well as the finalization of the Penal Code. UN agencies will also work with their respective national counterparts to mainstream gender equality and human rights into relevant sectors and programs and promote women’s political and economic empowerment.

Further advocacy and support will be needed to foster an enabling environment and increase the space for civil society to better realize their development potential.
The key purpose of the UNPF is to make the work of the UN Agencies in Lao PDR more coherent and coordinated. Therefore, the UNPF preserves the distinct value-added nature of UN Agencies while delivering greater impact from a coherent system. Taking into account the fast changing development context, the proliferation of new partners and business models and South-South and Triangular Cooperation will require new and innovative approaches by the UN Country Team to deliver tangible results that will improve people’s lives and leave no one behind.

The Delivering as One approach has been formally adopted and strongly supported by Lao PDR, providing the basis for the work of the UN Country Team to reduce institutional barriers, utilize shared data, analyses and advocacy to support integrated solutions, and improve standards and common operating systems.

Additionally, the UN presence provides high-level advice to improve public policy formulation and implementation, improve efficiency of governance through advice on governance reform and modern management systems, improve service delivery in sectors such as nutrition that needs disproportionate support from the international community, support data-driven evidence, facilitate innovation in public administration and service delivery, and integrate cross cutting issues on gender and values in all programming.

The UN Country Team has the primary responsibility and accountability for the management, implementation, monitoring, evaluation and oversight of the UNPF 2017-2021. The UN Resident Coordinator chairs the UN Country Team to ensure coherence, coordination and maximum effectiveness of the UN Agencies based in Lao PDR, including non-resident UN Agencies. Strategic oversight is provided by the joint Lao PDR - UN Steering Committee. The UN Country Team is committed to transparency, results and accountability, avoiding duplication and ensuring that coordination, synergies and reduced transaction costs are achieved.

The UNPF aims to focus the efforts of the UN Country Team to support the 8th NSEDP by drawing on the full range of UN expertise through a fully integrated approach to deliver results. Joint workplans will guide inter-agency collaboration to translate the outcomes of the UNPF into concrete and measurable outputs that the UN agencies will implement.

3. IMPLEMENTATION

The UNPF preserves the distinct value-added nature of UN Agencies while delivering greater impact from a coherent system.
The three thematic pillars will be supported by three results groups that will serve as coordination mechanisms at the operational levels and will be co-chaired by heads of UN agencies. The results groups will have the flexibility to merge or split as needed to support the implementation of the UNPF outcomes or cross-cutting issues.

Under the guidance of the UN Country Team, the UN Communications Group through its Communications Strategy will create awareness and advocate for key issues under the thematic pillars and outcomes of the UNPF. Communication messages will be targeted to all stakeholders in Lao PDR including partners, the private sector, donors, media, civil society, academic and research organizations and all levels of the population. The Communications Strategy will also help national partners communicate their results and create a national ownership and a drive to achieve the UNPF, under the banner of, “A Partnership for Sustainable Development”.

Through the UN Business Operations Strategy, the Operations Management Team, working under the guidance of the UN Country Team, will harmonize business practices, reduce operational costs and duplication, enhance effective and efficient delivery and maximize economies of scale. Systematic effort will be made to reduce overhead and transaction costs and to benchmark the efficiency and effectiveness of UN programs to the best of public and business standards. A strengthened system of transparency and accountability will be instituted across the UN programs.

This UN-wide framework for implementation and reporting is supported by a UN-wide resource and funding framework, and is a joint accountability mechanism for the UN Country Team in Lao PDR. This is a move towards a more integrated framework that provides upstream integrated support for Lao PDR to achieve the SDGs in line with the Quadrennial Comprehensive Policy Review.
The UN Country Team and the government will jointly monitor the progress of the UNPF as part of their commitments to aid effectiveness and accountability. The UNPF centers around three thematic pillars with eight outcomes that will be monitored through 25 indicators. The joint UN - Lao PDR Steering Committee will conduct an annual review that will form the basis for the annual country results report, drawing from and informing the monitoring of the 8th NSEDP and outlining the UN contribution. It is envisaged that the UNPF will be evaluated in 2020 to assess how the UN has substantively contributed to the national priorities under the eight outcomes.

The UN Country Team assumes the main responsibility for oversight and action and will meet regularly to strengthen partnerships and improve collaboration. A Monitoring and Evaluation Working Group will be established. Capacity building to strengthen national monitoring and evaluation will enhance data driven and evidence-based decision making.

The indicators and targets established in the UNPF Results and Resources Framework will form the basis to measure progress and determine if the UN has impacted in a meaningful way on the lives of the people of Lao PDR. The UN Country Team reiterates its commitment to working together as one, to maximize its resources and contributions in the best interests of the people of Lao PDR. The success of the UNPF will be measured primarily by Lao PDR’s progress towards the graduation from LDC status and the achievement of the SDGs and other international commitments.

The UN Country Team will ensure that mechanisms for accountability and feedback are integrated into UN-supported programme design and implementation, promoting transparency, participation and learning from affected populations.
5. ESTIMATED RESOURCES

The United Nations entities are primarily providers of technical cooperation rather than funders per se. The estimated financial resource requirements are a costing of the results of the UNPF. These are met through core resources of UN organizations; non-core resources from bilateral, multilateral and private sources; government cost-sharing; and community contributions.

The estimated resource requirements total US$ 426,453,500 for the period 2017 - 2021, of which US$ 291,013,800 remains to be mobilized. The distribution of the resources as per the three thematic pillars is:

1. Inclusive Growth, Livelihoods and Resilience: US$ 169,833,000
2. Human Development: US$ 188,920,000

The estimated resource requirements for each of the Outcomes is shown in the Financial Resources Matrix in Annex 2. These amounts are indicative. The UN is aware that while development needs for the country are still significant, the stress and slow recovery of the global economy and transition to a modern country will provide challenges related to mobilizing resources. The ambitious agenda of the UNPF will require coordinated and innovative resourcing modalities and implementation, taking into account the ongoing efforts of the respective UN agencies to achieve their mandates.
